

Jordan Lulloff is a Chicago-based saxophonist that specializes in the performance of music by living composers. In addition to his solo engagements, Jordan is a founding member of ~Nois, a Chicago-based saxophone quartet that defies categorization by working between the boundary of contemporary classical music and experimental improvisation.

Jordan has been the featured soloist with the United States Air Force Band, University of Memphis Wind Ensemble, and the Lansing and Ann Arbor Community Concert Bands. An advocate of new music, Jordan has given over 50 world premieres throughout the United States and abroad. As the Tenor Saxophonist of ~Nois, Jordan is in demand as a guest artist and lecturer at universities across the nation. In addition to university engagements, ~Nois has been featured at festivals such as Big Ears, the Continuum Music Festival, the Re:Sound Festival, the Great Lakes Chamber Music Festival, and Omaha Under the Radar.

Jordan completed his Bachelor's degree in Saxophone Performance and a minor in Jazz Studies at Michigan State University, where he studied with Joseph Lulloff. He completed his Masters degree in Saxophone Performance at Northwestern University, where he studied with Taimur Sullivan. He currently serves as Applied Instructor of Classical Saxophone at The University of Illinois Chicago.
